Monthly Comment

After a material fall before and immediately after Liberation Day on concerns around the impact of the aggressive policy decisions of the Trump administration, European equity markets recovered to finish the month slightly down. The recovery was triggered by a 90 day pause in the additional reciprocal tariffs, headlines around progress on tariff negotiations, and was further fueled by a resilient set of numbers by corporates. Against this backdrop, ELEVA European Selection was up 0.56% vs an index down 0.67%, an outperformance of 123 bps.

Sector allocation had a slightly positive impact, thanks to the underweight in energy, the overweight in communication services and utilities. Conversely, the allocation to consumer staples, real estate and health care had a negative impact on performance. Stock picking was positive, particularly in financials, materials and consumer discretionary.

3i Group staged a strong recovery, thanks to increased optimism on the long term potential of Action Group and anticipation that the strong Euro will help the group improve its purchasing conditions. Commerzbank was fueled by continued investor's appetite for German exposure in the light of the material fiscal plans. It also helped Heidelberg Materials and Continental deliver a strong intra-month recovery.

Intesa Sanpaolo suffered from a downward revision in interest rate expectations. Smurfit Westrock was impacted by a weak US dollar and a poor start to the year for pricing and demand in packaging products. BMW was weak on ongoing uncertainties on the impact of tariffs.

Economic growth was decent in 2024, with low growth in Europe and China balanced by an acceleration in the US. Falling inflation expectations reduce the risks of a Central Bank mistake. European indicators are starting to lose a bit of ground and there is has been sharp deterioration in the Global ELEVA Capital Index, led by the US. Patience is needed in Europe for interest rates and stimuli announcements to have an impact on economic activity. In that environment, we believe that corporates will still be able to grow at a moderate pace, but risks are growing with trade wars and US economic weakness.

Cyclical exposure was toned down to 44.3%, value exposure up slightly to 52.4%.

Since inception, ELEVA European Selection is up 124.95% vs an index up 85.70%, an outperformance of 3,925 bps.
