Monthly Comment

After a material fall before and immediately after Liberation Day on concerns around the impact of the aggressive policy decisions of the Trump administration, European equity markets recovered to finish the month slightly down. The recovery was triggered by a 90 day pause in the additional reciprocal tariffs, headlines around progress on tariff negotiations, and was further fueled by a resilient set of numbers by corporates.

Against this backdrop, ELEVA Euroland Selection was up 1.33% vs an index up 0.31%, an outperformance of 102 bps.

Sector allocation had a slightly negative impact, affected by the underweight in consumer staples, utilities and real estate, but somewhat offset by the positive impact of the allocation in energy, materials and consumer discretionary. Stock picking was positive, particularly in consumer discretionary, financials and materials.

Commerzbank was fueled by continued investor appetite for German exposure in the light of the material fiscal plans. It also helped Heidelberg Materials and Continental deliver a strong intra-month recovery. Euronext enjoyed record activity and benefited from the general interest for European exposure.

Intesa Sanpaolo suffered from a downward revision in interest rate expectations. Smurfit Westrock was impacted by a weak US dollar and a poor start to the year for pricing and demand in packaging products. BMW was weak on ongoing uncertainties on the impact of tariffs.

Economic growth was decent in 2024, with low growth in Europe and China balanced by an acceleration in the US. Falling inflation expectations reduce the risks of a Central Bank mistake. European indicators are starting to lose a bit of ground and there has been a sharp deterioration in the Global ELEVA Capital Index, led by the US. Patience is needed in Europe for interest rates and stimuli announcements to have an impact on economic activity. In that environment, we believe that corporates will still be able to grow at a moderate pace, but risks are growing with trade wars and US economic weakness.

Value and cyclicals were at 58.9% and 49.3% of the fund respectively.

Since inception, ELEVA Euroland Selection is up 69.60% vs an index up 65.84%, an outperformance of 376 bps.
