Monthly Comment

European markets rebounded in October, outperforming US equities thanks to their lower exposure to AI. The main driver was a sharp rotation away from the AI/Momentum complex. Renewed concerns over AI financing, with neocloud debt falling into distressed territory, and disappointing results from several US tech giants triggered a historic unwinding of Momentum strategies, as investors fled to safety into defensives. Healthcare surged 14% on strong earnings and positive trial data. Conversely, banks slumped by more than 10% as French political risk flared up again: violent riots amid the budget standoff, pushing the OAT-Bund spread to its widest level since 2011. US-Iran tensions kept oil prices elevated, with Brent climbing above $110/bbl amid attacks in the Gulf and reports of possible US strikes after the midterms. The Fed and the ECB both left rates unchanged, with the ECB adopting a slightly dovish tone. Third-quarter earnings remained supportive but did little to dampen the rotation.
In this context, ELEVA Euroland Selection was down 3.69% vs an index down 1.54%, an underperformance of 215 bps.

Sector allocation had a slightly negative impact, affected by the overweight in industrials, the underweight in health care and communication services, but somewhat compensated by the positive impact of the overweight in materials and financials.
Stock picking was negative, particularly in financials and industrials.
Outperformers were exclusively defensive stocks. UCB was a standout performer thanks to a material guidance upgrade and a competitor's clinical setback to its drug Bimzelx. Galderma also upgraded its guidance, end markets remain unaffected by the consumption challenges. L'Oréal had a very strong quarter, outperforming yet again the beauty industry and showing defensiveness in a difficult publishing season for consumer names. Regulated utility E.ON also benefited from the flight to safety.
Technology and electrification names were sold off despite delivering material guidance upgrades, as financing issues in the AI complex outweighed the positives. ASM International and Prysmian were under pressure. Schneider Electric also announced a poorly timed acquisition and a capital raise to fund it. Banks also were under heavy selling pressure, amid widening credit spreads and poor messaging on net interest margins with intensifying pressure on deposits. UniCredit, Banco Santander, Erste Group Bank and National Bank of Greece suffered in the month. Civil aerospace names (Rolls-Royce, Safran) underperformed as investors worry that high oil prices will affect aftermarket revenues.
Leading indicators are starting to turn downwards following a sustained period of improvement. Higher yields, tighter financing conditions and political uncertainties are, in our view, likely to start weighing on economic activity. For now, high nominal growth and improving productivity are supporting earnings. We note that corporates remain active in mergers and acquisitions and share buybacks.
Value and cyclicals were at 41.5% and 57.6% of the fund respectively, down materially on the previous month.

Since inception, ELEVA Euroland Selection is up 132.14% vs an index up 112.53%, an outperformance of 1,961 bps.
