Monthly Comment

In July 2025, European markets are up overall, supported by improving macroeconomic fundamentals and inflation under control. Half-year results were mixed, with cyclical stocks bearing the brunt of the trade war and currency movements. Uncertainty surrounding trade tensions with the US and rising geopolitical risks remain sources of volatility for companies and investors. At the end of the month, a deal was finally reached between the European Union and the US, imposing a moderate 15% tariff on European exports. On the monetary policy front, both the Fed and the ECB left their key rates unchanged.

The Stoxx Europe Small 200 Index (Net Return) is up 0.49% over the month (vs. +0.97% for the Stoxx Europe 600 Index Net Return).

Against this backdrop, ELEVA Leaders Small & Mid Cap Europe is up 0.55% in July, buoyed by positive stock selection, particularly in industrials (strong results from Beijer and Kardex) and real estate (Merlin Properties).

Given the continued positive signals from proprietary macroeconomic indices, we are maintaining our cyclical growth bias at 55% at the end of July.

Since inception, ELEVA Leaders Small & Mid Cap Europe is up 76.71% vs an index up 63.83%, an outperformance of 1 288 basis points.
